MRS. KATHRYN ROBBINS CANDIDATE RE-ELECTION

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT TO RUN FOR SECOND TERM WITH WIDE SUPPORT OF VOTERS

Mrs. Kathryn Robbins, county superintendent of public schools for Milam County, is a candidate for re-election to that office for a second term.

The announcement that Mrs. Robbins will be a candidate for this office again has been received with approving interest by her many friends here and throughout Milam County. She was elected to this office by a very large majority in the primary of 1924 and is serving her first term.

During the progress of her first term in office educational interests of the county have been advanced in accordance with the expectation of her friends who placed this high estimate on her service when they supported her for this office.

The administration of the educational affairs has been attended by some notable gatherings of educators and teachers in Cameron and especially have the rural schools of the county been benefited as longer terms and better conditions generally have come to the people since her admission to the office.

Much might be said about the success attained in this term by Mrs. Robbins. The people realizing this will accord her liberal support at the polls. In discussing her candidacy Mrs. Robbins said:

"Educational problems are worked out slowly and the first term has given me an opportunity to visit schools, get acquainted with teachers and trustees and study the problems under which each community is laboring. I have striven earnestly to administer the duties of the office impartially having before me always the welfare of the children of Milam County. By meeting and coming in contact with leading progressive county superintendents of the state I have been able to get a vision of what can be done in Miam County by the co-operation of patrons, trustees, teachers and superintendent."

Mrs. Monty Montgomery and little daughter, Betty Jane arrived Wednesday from Lockney to spend a month with her mother, Mrs. Meta McCown and her uncle, Mr. Fred Thompson.

AID OBTAINED FROM ROSENWALD FUND FOR COLORED SCHOOL TEACHER'S HOME

The School Board is asking for bids for the erection of a five room cottage on the colored school property to serve as a home for the principal. The erection of this cottage is made possible by a liberal grant of money from the Rosenwald Fund. By using the material from the old frame building at the colored school, this teacherage will be erected practically without cost to the community.

The Archer County Road Bond Case And Some Additional Observations

By HON. W. A. MORRISON

In an issue of the Dallas News of January 15th, 1926, I volunteered to offer some observations upon the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case mentioned, and volunteered the hazardous position of prophet to the effect that that opinion would be permitted to stand; and as that prediction has been verified, and as the question is still being discussed in the public press, I am inclined to the notion that it should be presented, and my return to the discussion of the question is actuated to some extent by the recollection of a declaration found in the call for the Convention at San Felipe de Austin in October,, 1832, in which it was said:

"A devotion to written constitutions and a strict adherence to their literal interpretation, has been one of the most distinguished political characteristics of all Anglo-Americans."

Indubitably that declaration at that time was pertinent and appropriate. Whether or not it could be so truthfully said at the present moment is quite another question. The highborn, elegant, accomplished and philosophic young Frenchman, De Tocqueville, in his visit to the United States in 1832, while General Jackson was President, prepared the material and gave to the world, by his studies and observation of constitutional government on this continent, the most profound, incisive and clear-cut analysis of the theory and fundamental principles of the Constitution of the United States that in my humble judgment, has ever yet been offered by the students, philosophic and otherwise, of that most stupendous charter of human liberty. He said that in his wide travels over the United States, he found the people, the common, as well as the educated ones, so well versed in the theory of constitutional government, that the commonest man with whom he conversed could tell him instantly whether a certain political question involved a question of national legislation or of state legislation.

I am very much afraid that the public intelligence upon such questions at this day is inferior to that of nearly one hundred years ago. It would be useless to undertake to give all of the reasons of the existing condition. One broad one might suffice. They are not discussed, talked about and made the live issues now as they were then, and this is but another way of finding an excuse for saying that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

There are so many questions under the complex civilization of the hour and so many and such enormous financial undertakings and enterprises whose ultimate object is the accumulation of wealth, that abstract principles of right and wrong and concrete constitutional guaranties are overlooked and overridden. Everything is pitched upon the gratification of present desires. Therefore, in order that constitutional government shall not perish from the earth, it is important

B P VOSS BURIED IN DALLAS MON. APRIL 12

HUSBAND OF MISS INEZ TYSON PASSES AWAY AFTER LONG ILLNESS

That sadness follows fast upon the steps of gladness was felt in Cameron Saturday when it was learned that Mr. B. P. Voss who married Miss Inez Tyson in Cameron on December 27, had succumbed to a fatal illness in San Antonio. Many expressions of sympathy for the young wife were heard. A telegram to Mr. and Mrs. Van Tyson, parents of Mrs. Voss brought the sad news that Voss had passed away and that the funeral would be held in Dallas on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Tyson and family with Miss Ruth McGuire and Miss Jennie Brown left as soon as possible by auto for Dallas.

Mrs. Inez Voss and Mr. Charles Voss, his father, left San Antonio for Dallas with the body of the deceased and arrived there early Sunday.

The body was carried to Lamar and Smith Funeral Chapel in Oak Cliff from which the funeral was held on Monday morning at ten o'clock with interment later in the New Oak Cliff Cemetery. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, many being sent by Cameron friends. The employes of the Spaulding Company for whom Mr. Voss had worked for several years sent a floral "V" on an easel with the name Voss in relief. Dr. Wm. M. Anderson of the Dallas Presbyterian church conducted the funeral services and paid a wonderful tribute to the splendid character of Mr. Voss. The twenty-third Psalm a favorite text often read to him during his last illness was the scripture used.

Mr. B. P. Voss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Voss of Oak Cliff, was born in Gatesville twenty-eight years ago. For sixteen years the family had been in Dallas and Mr. B. P. Voss had been a traveling salesman for Spaulding goods for the Dallas territory for several years. He married Miss Inez Tyson on December 27, 1925. He changed his contract so as to remain at home in Dallas. An ideal apartment was attractively furnished for his fair bride. Just four weeks after his wedding he was stricken with Flu. Typhoid fever followed, lasting many days. Thinking he might be benefited by a change of climate, upon the advice of skilled physicians he was removed to a hospital in San Antonio about two weeks ago. His father, Mr. Charles Voss, and his bride were in constant attendance as were two trained nurses, but the disease could not be stayed and he passed away on Saturday, April 10, 1926. He was married on Saturday, became ill on Saturday and died on Saturday.

He is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Voss, and by an only sister, Mrs. Ben Sims of Oak Cliff and by his bride who has scores of friends in Cameron where she will return to live with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Van Tyson.

TOM BACEY, DIES FROM AXE WOUNDS IN HEAD NEAR BRIARY

The slayers of Tom Bacey are still at large. No clue has been found that promises arrest although the shireff and deputies have been at work since the discovery of the dead negro near Briary last Saturday morning.

District Attorney Jack Lewis and Constable Chas. Sens went to the scene of the death, found the negro as reported, dead in a cabin. He had been found wounded the day before. The wound indicated the negro had been hit with an axe or other blunt instrument.

The negro was picked up by other negroes and placed in bed. A physician was called and it was thought he would recover. The next morning Bacey was found dead in bed.

Officers are conducting a vigorous investigation.

119 FARMERS ENTERED IN LESS ACRES PLAN

COTTON CONTEST GROWS IN INTEREST AS FARMERS CONTINUE TO SIGN

Up to date 119 farmers have signed up for the "more cotton on fewer acres" contest sponsored by the Commercial Slub.

The number to sign for this contest is so large that considerable worry is apparent among club members who see a difficult task in conducting this contest.

Actual supervision will begin as soon as the cotton is growing. The rules of the contest require weighing and receipts for the cotton.

Fertilizer is being used by the farmers. The contest has stimulated interest in the proper growth of crops and the use of commercial fertilizer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Copus who have recently returned to Cameron from Kentucky where they spent more than a year, have purchased half interest in the Cameron Plumbing and Electric Company.

that the people should again be advised and renew their faith and their allegiance to the immortal principles established by their fathers in, as we are prone to think, a less enlightened age than the red glare of the present.

In the first Constitution of the Republic of Texas, adopted at the old town of Washington on the 17th of March, 1836, in Section 7 thereof, it was provided:

"No citizen shall be deprived of privileges, outlawed, exiled, or in any manner disfranchised, except by due course of the law of the land."

It will be said that this declaration was but a crystallization of the great principle wrung by the Barons from King John after the battle of Runnymede. But it suffices to show that on this far away rim of civilization the Anglo-Saxon had not forgotten his ancient notions of liberty and the just powers of governments, as well as their duties. The principle there announced was kept in mind, cultivated and cherished by the citizens of the Republic of Texas, as is evidenced by section 16 of the Constitution adopted at Austin on the 27th day of August, 1845, wherein it was provided:

"No citizen of this state shall be deprived of life, liberty, property or privileges, outlawed, exiled or in any manner disfranchised, except by due course of the law of the land."

It will be seen that this last Constitution extended the rights of the individual, and for the first time the subject of property was brought forward as well as life and liberty. These three subjects being then an extension of the guaranties in the Constitution of 1836, therefore, it will be seen that the principle had been advocated, had been discussed, and the public conscience awakened; otherwise, there would have been no enlargement of the guaranties provided.

The next Constitution of 1875 as to that particular section was a literal readoption of the provisions of 1845, and no progress was made from 1845 to 1875 as far as the subjects of constitutional immunities were concerned, and there does not seem to have been any enlargement of the subjects, because I believe no amendment of that section of the constitution has been offered, and at least none adopted since that time. The vast and complex interests of these times have found encouragement, support and existence in Texas under the benign influence of these salutary principles; but many assults have been made upon them, and in many instances they have been ignored, overlooked and overridden. Under our system of government, the courts are the guardians of these sacred rights, but as eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, it is not amiss to return upon any pretex, or upon none, to these eternal principles of human governments, and it should be done because, as we have recently seen, our courts have misconstrued, misconceived, denied and ignored these great principles of which they are special guardians, and it should also be done because "a devotion to written constitutions and a strict adherence to their literal interpretation has been one of the most distinguished political characteristics of all Anglo-Americans."

Whenever an assault has been made upon any of these principles and has succeeded for a time, finally the day of reckoning comes and then we have loud complaints and cries of repudiation; this but reminds me of Dr. Johnson's celebrated and caustic quip when he said: "No rogue ever felt the halter draw with good opinion of the law."

As said before, the 14th Amendment was but a reiteration of the principles of government long cherished by Anglo-Saxon peoples before the adoption of that amendment. That amendment only accorded to the Federal government the right to enforce those principles when and if they should be ignored by any of the several states. Instead of diminishing the rights of the individual, the 14th Amendment merely enlarged his rights by giving him another and an additional method and means of enforcing them. The Federal government for the first time stretched out its strong arm and said to the several states: "Even though you desire to deny, or shall attempt to deny to your citizens any of these great individual guaranties, yet, because your citizens at the same time are also citizens of this Republic, you shall not do so."

It seems to be contended by some who have expressed their opinion upon the Archer county case, that since they were unable to convince the Supreme Court of the United States that it had made a mistake in making what we had contended at the first was a correct decision of the question at hand, that yet the effects of such opinion may be escaped ,destroyed or evaded because of some technical objections that may be urged against those who have been favarably affected by such decision. This is a strange doctrine. It is a peculiar way to express adherence to constitutional government. It is likely to produce the suggestion that it is more in the way of an evasion than an argument. If the individual has a constitutional right that guarantees him in the enjoyment of his property, yet if you take it or invade it in defiance of those rights, when you have once placed your hands upon it or unlawfully wrested it from his possession, you can turn to him and say: "Because I have acquired it, you have lost your right to dispute my invasion of it." No honest mind, when consciously summoned to the consideration of the proposition, can give its assent to the conclusion sought to be thus established.

The philisophy of Montesquieu had a controlling influence upon the information [illegible] ment of the correct principles of our national constitution, and the same influence paved the way for the French Revolution, and brought the proud neck of Louis XVI and the lovely Marie Antonette under the descending blade of the guillotine, and destroyed absolutism in France. Another great Frenchman, as before suggested, gave to the French people and not particularly intended for the American people, a greater treatise, exposition and analysis of the principles of our own constitution than any other person.

The constitution of the United States was the work of young men. The average age of the members of that convention was less than forty years. General Washington was 55 years of age and Benjamin Franklin 81, and they were the only two persons in that convention who were older than 43 years. That instrument was not a great instrument simply because we call it great, but it was great because it was founded upon the soundest philiosphy and the new doctrine of the rights of the individual as against the masses. The old Romans had a notion that the voice of the people was the voice of God, but that fallacy overlooked the natural rights of the individual to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and that principle was the main difference between our form of government and all other forms of government that had flourished and failed in the vast tides of time that had preceeded. Our forefathers established a form of government as philosophically correct, and almost as incapable of being disproved as the truths of Euclid's geometry. No wiser man appeared in the Confederate government than Alexander Stephens, and he said: "Times change and men change with them, but principles never."

The principles of government embodied in the second sentence of Section one of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and recognized as well, if not better, in our own constitutions long prior to the adoption of the 14th Amendment, are as lasting as human reason, but unless these principles are discussed and made known so that they may be recognized by all the people, and they are enabled to comprehend them as in the age when De Tocqueville visited among us, then they are likely to be forgotten, ignored and lost, because everybody is entrusting the advocacy and promulgation of these principles to somebody else.

I have the greatest confidence in both the wisdom and integrity of our courts, but we have seen right here in Texas that our courts have overlooked, ignored or disregarded one of the fundamental principles embodied in both the state and national constitutions, that is, the rights of the individual. If those principles are not kept in view and cherished by the multitude, even the special guardians will overlook or forget them.

Let us see, then, what principle it is involved in this Archer county road bond case. Our own constitution as well as the Federal Constitution had specifically provided that no man should be deprived of life, liberty or property except by due process of law. The constitution of our state as well as the road bond legislation in reference to it, had provided for what was termed a "defined district," and by that provision it was meant a certain number of individuals could lay off and designate a certain district which by their votes would be created into a corporation which would have authority to issue bonds and levy a tax in payment therefor. Plainly and palpably this was not a legislative designation of a taxing district, and, therefore, was not due process of law, because the legislative power to constitute due process of law must be exercised in the creation of these districts. This being a representative form of government, the individual would be bound by the act of the Legislature, because he would be represented therein by a person for whom he had had an opportunity to vote, and this constitutes representative government as contemplated by the Constitution of the United States and our own, in contradistinction to a pure democracy as represented in the Roman philosophy where the rights of the individual must always yield to the majority.

Our government was formed upon the theory of a government of laws and not of men, and that the fundamental rights of the individual could not be denied him, even by a majority of all but one. Any other theory of government is not a representative democracy, and in that nature of things can not be. There can be no moral sanction to the doctrine that one hundred of my neighbors have a right to deprive me of my life, my liberty or my property, except by due process of the law of the land. To think otherwise is to leave out of view the fundamental concept of all morality and all representative democracy. To create a "defined district" by the votes of interested persons by which you tax someone's property over his objection, is as immoral as it is unlawful, simply because you have the majority with which to do it. You might as well deny him the right of bail, the right of a speedy public trial or the right to enjoy the fruits of his industry, or any other inherent and fundamental rights as you have without due process of law to lay a burden upon him, even though it be only a pecuniary burden and to the advantage of everyone in the district except him. His rights are supreme, fundamental and as eternal as the laws of nature. They ought not and can not be ignored or destroyed without destroying the fundamental notion of all morals and our own government. To hold otherwise is to confess a lack of constitutional morality.

Constitutional morality is a term borrowed from Mr. Beck's treatise on the American Constitution and signifies a lack of interest in, a comprehensive of and utter disregard of the fundamental concepts of the constitution itself. In that sense it is as immoral to ignore the constitution as it is to ignore the Ten Commandments.

Not long since, I heard a distinguished divine say from the pulpit, in speaking of the Ten Commandments, that if there should be called a congress of the intelligentia of the world and that congress given ultimate time, it would find it impossible to promulgate a new moral law. So likewise, in my humble judbment, if you were to call a congress of the intelligentia of Texas, they could not form or promulgate a new law that would make an act constitutional when it is clearly not so, and having been declared unconstitutional by the highest authority that can pass on the subject, the mere statement of the proposition itself is conclusive, even when it is disassociated with any concept of authority. So likewise, it would be just as impossible for the Legislature of the State of Texas to make an act constitutional which is obviously unconstitutional as it would be for the legislature to set aside the entire constitution, and adopt a new one.

It is now proposed to make that lawful which was uniawful in its incipiency; to say to this individual, or any number of individuals, at least to those who voted against the measure, that we will devise some plan by which we can defeat your constitutional right and make that now lawful which was unlawful when it was done. We levied a tax upon your property in violation of the constitution. We now say even though it was uniawful then, yet after the commission of the act, we will now make it lawful, and thus do to you indirectly that which we had no authority to do directly. To suggest the question is the vilest constitutional immorality. Every citizen should be as zealous to preserve the constitutional rights of himself and of every other citizen as he is to preserve his own life or his own property. In the eyes of the constitution, one is as sacred as the other.

But it will be said this is repudiation, and that the very idea of repudiation is detested by honorable men. That is true. But you must either repudiate the constitution or repudiate the debt. Upon that theory a constitutional government instead of being an instrument to preserve the rights of the individual, becomes one for his undoing, and thereby the constitution becomes but sounding brass and tinkling cymbal. The first wrong that was done to the individual over this protest can be no justification for doing him another wrong in attempting to ratify the wrong first committed. To evade the constitution, to ignore it, or to defeat its purpose, is a greater crime than the repudiation of all the unlawful debts in the world.

The purchasers of these bonds were warned in advance and the doctrine of caveat emptor applies. The fact that these bonds were being unlawfully issued was obvious to any man who pretended any knowledge of the constitution. To now say that this individual, who objected, who protested, and who voted against that proposition and did all in his power to prevent the infliction of the injury upon himself, can be held up and punished for something that he neither encouraged nor profited by, but protested against, is as unjust as it is immoral.

You may talk about repudiation, as odious as that charge may be, yet it can not be as odious to repudiate a bad debt as it is to repudiate a good constitution. But be that as it may, repudiation has no application to an unlawful debt. If the debt has been created or contracted in violation of constitutional law, there can be no moral obligation to discharge the debt except on the part of those who aided and encouraged the creation of it, and if their moral integrity is as lofty as their constitutional morality should be, then they may volunteer to pay what their minority victims can not, and ought not, to be forced to pay, but while discharging their moral obligation, they should not do so by the sacrifice by their constitutional morality.

In the formation of our national constitution, we obtained much of our inspiration from a European philosopher, and from the proceedings of the Bolsheviki and antics of the Italian dictator, we are under the double duty to preserve our constitutions for our own salvation and also that we may repay to Europe by our example the debt of gratitude we owe her in the 20th century for what we obtained from her in the 18th.

The foregoing remarks have been directed to the point as to whether or not the bonds that have been issued unlawfully in the light of the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States on the constitutional questions involved in that case ought to be paid, or the burden of them placed upon those persons who were not responsible for the creation of the unlawful debt. We propose now to discuss briefly the question as to whether or not there is any power, constitutional or legislative, residing in either the people or the legislature, to impose the burden upon those persons who were not responsible for the creation of the unlawful ogligations in question.

A great deal has been said about the number of bonds that are outstanding and that they are all made questionable by the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, and, therefore, the people of Texas ought to take some steps to validate these bonds and to remove the condition of doubtful validity which it is now claimed is invalidating or depreciating the value of all such bonds. This fallacy is done more for the purpose of argument to create the impression that all these bonds ought to be validated; whereas, in truth and in fact, the validity of only a small portion of the bonds has been affected by the decision in the Archer County case.

Indubitably, those bonds which were issued by a district lawfully created by the legislature are in nowise affected, and only the bonds that have been issued by what is known as a "defined district" are in question. This is the only kind of district that was involved in the Archer County case, and this was the only kind of district held unlawful by the Supreme Court, but by implication that opinion holds valid the bonds issued by all other districts, that is, by districts created directly by the legislature, or under its specific authority, such as justices' districts, commissioners' districts and entire counties. No question has been raised as to the validity of such districts and there is no question about their validity, because in creating such districts by the legislature, due process of law was observed, and the only question affecting any of such bonds is the one affecting those issued by the so-called "defined districts," and the valdity of that kind of district was denied for the simple reason that it was not a legislative district and was not created by due process of law. Because of the special character of the district, no legislation was passed at that time affording an opportunity to a person who objected, to being heard in the creation of such district, and it was not due process of law for that reason.

So none of the bonds issued by such character of district are now valid, nor can they, in my opinion, ever be made valid, and that arises by other constitutional provisions which it might be well to consider in reference to that question.

Section 53 of Article 3 of the Texas Constitution reads as follows:

"The legislature shall have no power to grant, or to authorize any county or municipal authority to grant, any extra compensation, fee or allowance to a public officer, agent, servant or contractor after service has been rendered or a contract has been entered into, and performed in whole or in part; nor pay nor authorize the payment of, any claim created against any county or municipality of the state, under any agreement or contract, made without authority of law."

These bonds issued by the "defined district" were made without authority of law because of the constitutional provisions heretofore referred to and because the Supreme Court of the United States has construed the 14th Amendment as prohibiting the issuance of such. There can be no question, then, that the bonds of these "defined districts" were made and issued without authority of law. So then the legislature can not possibly have the authority to validate a contract when the power has been expressly denied by express terms of the constitution.

Not only is the authority expressly denied by section 53 of Article 3 above quoted, but also by Section 16 of Article 1 of the Constitution which reads as follows:

"No bill of attainder, ex post facto law, retroactive law, or any law impairing the obligation of contracts shall be made."

If the legislature is denied the power to pass an ex post facto law, it seems that it would be a difficult matter to pass a law that would make valid the issuance of these bonds by these "defined districts" long after the creation of the obligation. If the law under which the proposed obligations were issued was invalid at the time of the making of the obligation, it is a little difficult to see by what process of sound reasoning the conclusion could be reached that it could afterwards be made valid by an act of the legislature, when our own constitution has specifically denied such power. The only thing that could be hoped from the legislature would be that it would so obscure and entangle the question that it would become necessary to make another trip to the Supreme Court of the United States, and that in the meantime a few more years of interest might be collected on unlawful and void obligations.

H. C. Keith Returns From Dayton Meet Delco Light Men

H. C. Keith has just returned from Dayton, Ohio, where he has been attending the Tenth Anniversary Delco-Light and Frigidaire sales convention which was held in that city April 8 and 9 and in which 1500 members of the field organization of the Delco-Light Company took part.

Those attending the convention, Mr. Keith said, won free trips to Dayton, all expenses paid and other substantial awards were given for securing a required volume of business for the company, and this honor came to Mr. Keith as a reward for his exceptional sales effort in his territory.

An important feature of the convention, said Mr. Keith was the announcement by the company of a new model, completely automatic Delco-Light plant. This plant does not have the usual storage battery. It starts automatically, whenever a light is turned on or any electric switch is closed, and it stops when the light is turned off or the other electric service is ended.

This plant will provide thirty 25-watt lights or their equivalent and is especially adaptable to the automatic electric service required for the operation of electric pressure water systems and of Frigidaire, the electric refrigerator.

Tentative plans for the still greater expansion of the Delco-Light Company at Dayton, were intimated by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. president of the General Motors Corporation, who was a guest of the convention and who declared that the resources of General Motors were back of any plans of the Delco-Light Company, its subsidiary, to make and to sell, in still greater numbers, Delco-Light products of the highest possible quality and at the lowest possible price.

The Delco-Light Company now has in Dayton, said Mr. Keith, the largest factory of its kind in the world, covering 32 acres of floor space and their plans for expansion are based on indications that in 1926 there will be bought at least twice the number of their products that were bought in 1925.

Mr. Keith says that from April 1 to April 5 the 1500 dealers who attended the convention turned into the president of the Delco-Light Company 26,000 orders for Delco Light and Frigidaire contracts amounting to $1,250,000.00.

IS IT CATARRH?

Oden, Ark.—"About four years ago I was troubled with catarrh in the head and with indigestion. My doctor did me no good. Finally I wrote to Dr. Pierce and when I received an answer I sent for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Pleasant Pellets, and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, also a Nasal Irrigator. I commenced to doctor myself and had good success. I'm sure I would not have been living if I hadn't obtained relief. I am 64 years of age. I tell every one who has catarrh to consult Dr. Pierce, as he surely helped me."—J. W. Ledbetter. All dealers.

If Kidneys Act Bad Take Salts

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Ideal Ration For Milk Production

College Station, Texas. April 12.—What is the ideal ration for milk production in Texas? Professor George P. Grout, head of the Dairy Husbandry department of the A. & M. College of Texas answers that "Cotton seed meal the cheapest source of protein in the South. It is palatable, and when fed with other suitable concentrates it is one of the most valuable feeds for dairy cattle."

Here is the ration Professor Grout recommends as the proper diet for a milch cow:

1-4 cotton seed meal

1-4 wheat bran or ground oats

1-2 ground corn, hominy feed or ground grain, sorghum, ground barley or rice bran

To the mixture add 1% ground bone meal and 1 per cent salt. This ration is to be fed with all the houghage a cow will consume.

Here's the ration by weights:

100 pounds cotton seed meal

100 pounds wheat bran or ground oats

200 pounds barley, ground corn or grain sorghums.

4 pounds steamed bone meal

4 pounds salt

This ration, according to Professor Grout, will insure a maximum production of milk and constitutes the most economical ration, well balanced, that milch cow can be given.

POEM BY ROBERT LOWE

The Houston Post Dispatch of recent date in a collection of poems by Texas writers numbered among the best selected poems of Texans the following lines by Robert Liddell Lowe, son of Mrs. Bessie Lowe, a former Cameron teacher. Robert Lowe is known here as a bright student. He grew up in Cameron and when he finished grammer school was the class valedictorian. He graduated from the Ballinger High School in 1924 and since that time has been in Baylor University:

BOADICEA

I only have the silence of the trees
To comfort me—a silence black and cold
As death, save for that heather-scented breeze
That fingers tenderly my hair of gold.
But, O, to think that yonder lies that pair
Of doves, white as the moon's cold wind-swept breast—
My daughters—dead! Their eyes' cool glassy stare
Would haunt the very bravest Roman's rest!
O Druids, now let fall your blood-red rain
Of vengeance on these thieves who tore away
My Britain, leaving me this madd'ning pain.
And lest I die, as those I loved, this day—
I'll drink from this jade bowl the cure of all
My ills * * * * I scarcely hear that birds thin call.

BAPTISTS READY; GREAT ADVANCE

April Ingathering For Co-operative Program Is Feature of Forward Move.

PLAN FOR BIG CONVENTION

Special Emphasis Is Laid On Spiritual Preparation for Gathering of Forces at Houston May 12-16

Conditions favor a distinct advance on the part of Southern Baptists in 1926 along many lines, according to information received by the headquarters of the Co-operative Program Commission of Southern Baptists.

This body, charged by the Southern Baptist Convention and various state conventions with providing adequate support for foreign missions, home missions, ministerial relief and Baptist schools, hospitals and orphanages, is seeking to so increase and stabilize the income of the denomination as to provide adequately for all these enterprises through a regular budget. In this connection the Commission is seeking to enlist as nearly as possible every member of every church in making regular weekly and monthly offerings to this general budget which is distributed among these seven causes on percentages proportionate to their various needs.

Approximately $9,200,000 for these objects was received during 1925, it is announced, but inasmuch as only $4,698,000 of this amount was in distributable funds some of the objects suffered for lack of sufficient cash. Under the leadership of the Commission a definite effort is being made to secure as much or more money as was contributed in 1925, but in undesignated amounts so that each cause will get its proportionate share.

Receipts By States

The receipts for 1925 through the various state offices were as follows: Alabama, $352.308.67; Arkansas, $239,333.66; District of Columbia, $48,000; Florida, $223,665.88; Georgia, $480,868.54; Illinois, $81,051.17; Kentucky, $514,300.01; Louisiana, $312,499.70; Maryland, $91,200.00; Mississippi, $580.736.76; Missouri, $230,344.13; New Mexico, $38,981.64; North Carolina, $691,713.44; Oklahoma, $137,369.01; South Carolina, $434,584.70; Tennessee, $390,287.44; Texas, $873,407.96, and Virginia, $946,066.05. The remainder of the $9,200,000 received in 1925 consisted largely of special gifts to foreign missions and the building fund of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

An outstanding feature of this effort of the Commission is a special cash ingathering for the month of April, when every one of the nearly 4,000,000 white Baptists of the South will be asked to make as generous an offering as possible to the whole Co-operative Program, this money to be distributed proportionately among the seven general causes embraced therein.

Convention Prospects Good

In the event this April ingathering attains the goal set for it, it will make it possible for the various Southwide Baptist enterprises to report great relief in their financial situation to the Southern Baptist Convention at its session in Houston, Texas, May 12-16.

The committee on program for this year's convention, in the hope of giving that session the largest possible spiritual emphasis, has arranged for a special season of prayer and worship in the Convention auditorium at Houston for Tuesday evening, May 11th, preceding the opening of the Convention on Wednesday morning. At this preliminary service J. Fred Scholfield of Birmingham, Ala., will lead the song service; Dr. W. A. McComb of Gulfport, Miss., will lead the prayer meeting and Dr. H. R. Holcomb of Mansfield, La., will preach a brief sermon. Another innovation in this year's Convention program calls for the closing of each morning and evening session with a brief sermon by a representative pastor. Dr. Fred F. Brown, Knoxville, Tenn., will deliver the main Convention sermon on Wednesday morning.

ACHIEVING SUCCESS IN BUSINESS

A book to interest young, wide-awake, ambitious people—to inspire them to higher things in life—is Achieving Success in Business." In this book illustrated with actual pictures of successes, the author has kept in mind that youth has a limitless ambition, that young men and young women reach for the stars, that they are hungry, insatiable for life with its rich experiences and sensations, that, for youth, life in all its rich experiences anEAOINETAETE fullness lies AHEAD.

It has long been known that the biggest incomes and the richest opportunities are to be found in the field of business; that young men and women often achieve greater success before they are thirty than many achieve in other callings in a life time. But, so far as anyone knows, few books have been written telling why. "Achieving Success in Business" is one of the few.

The courses which are known to equip young people best for any position the business world offers are explained in the helpful book. Tyler Commercial College is the publisher of this book—the school that has used much care in choosing its faculty, its courses and its system of teaching. All of these are discussed in the book, 'Achieving Success in Business." Reasons are given why the graduate of the private secretarial, general business, general railroad, general western union, general civil service, general cotton classing, radio, penmanship and many other courses are leaders and where the leaders are.

Tyler Commercial College wants every ambitious person to read "Achieving Success in Business." It is to your interest to send for the book if you want a good position; if you want to be well on the road to success long before you are thirty; if you want to accomplish all this in half the usual time and at less expense. IS IT CATARRH?

Oden, Ark.—"About four years ago I was troubled with catarrh in the head and with indigestion. My doctor did me no good. Finally I wrote to Dr. Pierce and when I received an answer I sent for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Pleasant Pellets, and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, also a Nasal Irrigator. I commenced to doctor myself and had good success. I'm sure I would not have been living if I hadn't obtained relief. I am 64 years of age. Friday evening a Roman Banquet was enjoyed at the school, later the contestants attended an Operetta in the gym. Such a representation from Yoe High School is well worth being proud of.

METHODIST SOCIAL

Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Howard Baskin a social was held for all ladies of the Methodist congregation.

Bluebonnets and Indian flags were used in vases, bowls, and baskets, to lend floral charm to the reception hall and reading room. In the dining room only bluebonnets were used and the handsome dining table was centered by a field of the magnificent blossoms flanked by crystal holders of confections. The hostess who is president of the Methodist Missionary Society was assisted in receiving by the leaders of the four Missionary circles. Mesdames Leland Green, S. W. Cheeves, M. M. Johnson and Joe B. Lindsey. Each guest upon arrival was tagged with the name of a female Biblecal character and asked to take her place in the receiving line. After all had arrived two unique contests were conducted by Mesdames S. P. Doggett and Robert Terry in which all merrily joined. Mrs. Claude Triggs invited the guests into the dining room where four attractive young matrons, Mesdames Clifton Jenness, Arthur Hugh Baskin, W. P. Davis and Vernon Roberts served an attractive salad plate with punch arranged by Mrs. Wm. Rogers and pinned on bluebonnet bouttoneires.

Mesdames C. S. Peyton, W. B. Levy, Edwin York, W. S. Hoover, J. L. Clinton and Miss Mildred Clinton gave a program of music and readings which wa sheard with pleasure. Nearly a hundred ladies enjoyed the delightful social.

PICNIC H. E. GIRLS

On April 1, the Foods Classes enjoyed a picnic prepared by themselves at 11:30 a. m. and at 3:30 p. m. two sections of the Foods Classes and hence the two picnics.

It happened that the Study and Preparation of lunch boxes came on April 1 and so after preparation in class the girls walked down to the city park at the said hours and feasted.

We were reported as playing "hookey" but surely not, as a teacher was with us. Our lesson was enjoyed much more by this outing at the park where a variety of lunch boxes were spread.

Of course it was fun to see others watching us as we quietly left the school building—but we returned at the noon hour. (That day was April 1.)

SEVENTY YEARS YOUNG

The ladies of Methodist circle No. 4 presented to Mr. W. H. (Pa) Triggs a beautiful bouquet of pink carnations on Saturday, April 10, 1926, his seventieth birthday as an expression of their love and esteem for him.

Mr. Triggs is a loyal member of the Methodist church and with the help of his good wife has brought up a splendid family of four sons and one daughter who are shining lights in the church of their father. The example of Mr. Triggs is emulated by all who desire to exemplify the teachings of Christ according to the standards of the Methodist congregation in Cameron prize the life and example of Mr. Triggs far more than they often try to express. His seventieth birthday was rembered by the thoughtful ladies of circle four in a beautiful way when they decided to "Say it with Flowers" that they loved him and his noble wife more than mere words could express. Mrs. Leland Green, circle leader made the presentation in a few well chosen words and read the following poem from the pen of a gifted circle member:

"To Mr. W. H. Triggs from Circle number four, First Methodist Church South.

"We are thinking of you very much today
In a 'specially loving way
Because you're the "Pa" of circle four
And ther's not a one we love any more.
We've journeyed along the pathway of life
And been greatly blessed by you and your wife,
Your lives have been like a beautiful song
With so much of sweetness and no bit of wrong.
And so today, when you're "young" just seventy years
We wish for you happiness, and not any tears
So in token of the friendship of many pleasant hours
Accept, with our love this bouquet of flowers."

—Mrs. Lelia M. Batte.

ACHIEVING SUCCESS IN BUSINESS

A book to interest young, wide-awake, ambitious people—to inspire them to higher things in life—is Achieving Success in Business." In this book illustrated with actual pictures of successes, the author has kept in mind that youth has a limitless ambition, that young men and young women reach for the stars, that they are hungry, insatiable for life with its rich experiences and sensations, that, for youth, life in all its rich experiences anEAOINETAETE fullness lies AHEAD.

It has long been known that the biggest incomes and the richest opportunities are to be found in the field of business; that young men and women often achieve greater success before they are thirty than many achieve in other callings in a life time. But, so far as anyone knows, few books have been written telling why. "Achieving Success in Business" is one of the few.

The courses which are known to equip young people best for any position the business world offers are explained in the helpful book. Tyler Commercial College is the publisher of this book—the school that has used much care in choosing its faculty, its courses and its system of teaching. All of these are discussed in the book, "Achieving Success in Business." Reasons are given why the graduate of the private secretarial, general business, general railroad, general western union, general civil service, general cotton classing, radio, penmanship and many other courses are leaders and where the leaders are.

Tyler Commercial College wants every ambitious person to read "Achieving Success in Business." It is to your interest to send for the book if you want a good position; if you want to be well on the road to success long before you are thirty; if you want to accomplish all this in half the usual time and at less expense. Just send the coupon printed below for the big, helpful, illustrated book. It's FREE, send NOW.

INDIGESTION

Black-Draught Brings Relief for Tight, Bloated Feeling.

"I had indigestion," says Mr. W. B. Bouknight, of Ballentine, S. C. "Working out, I got in the habit of eating fast, for which I soon paid by having a tight, bloated feeling after meals. This made me very uncomfortable.

"I would feel stupid and drowsy, didn't feel like working. I was told it was indigestion. Some one recommended Black-Draught and I took it after meals. I soon could eat anything any time.

"I use it for colds and billiousness and it will knock out a cold and carry away the bile better and quicker than any liver medicine I have ever found."

Eating too fast, too much, or faulty chewing of your food, often causes discomfort after meals. A pinch of Black-Draught, washed down with a swallow of water, will help to bring prompt relief.

Black-Draught gently helps the over-taxed organs to perform their regular functions, in such cases, ridding the system of poisons that might accumulate.

BACKACHE

Mississippi Lady Benefited by Taking Cardui.

"I took Cardui for backache and a weakened, run-down condition, and it strengthened and helped me," says Mrs. Mattie Hurt, of Coldwater, Miss.

"Before the birth of my children, when weak and nauseated, I took Cardui. After the birth of my children, when just getting up to do my work, I took a couple of bottles of Cardui and it never failed to strengthen and help me when taking it.

"I seemed to enjoy my food and my back would feel stronger. I don't believe I could have kept going had it not been for Cardui and the strength it gave me.

"When change of life came on I . . . got down in bed. Life seemed to be just a terrible drag. I did not have strength for anything. My back hurt. My limbs hurt. I was so nervous I couldn't rest.

"I knew what Cardui had done, so sent straight for it, and it did just as it had done before—strengthened and built me up."

BY MRS. JEFF T. KEMP

BASS- ROBINSON

The Methodist church of Cuero was the scene of a beautiful spring wedding on the afternoon of Wednesday April the seventh when Miss Tennie Mae Bass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bass, became the bride of W. Scott Robinson of Chicago. The impressive ring ceremony was read by Rev. J. H. King in the presence of a large concourse of interested friends. The decorations were unusually effective. A wreath of lovely spring flowers in shades of pink and white being used against a background of ferns and evergreens. Floor baskets in graduated heights, filled with long stemmed roses, calla lilies and feathered fern were arranged in a semi-circle about the chancel providing a lovely setting for the ceremony. A beautiful program of music was given by Miss Margaret Smith who also accompanied Mrs. Earl Evers as she sang the appealing wedding song, "At Dawning". The wedding music from Lohengrin was played for a processional as the attendants advanced down the central aisle of the church. Following the ushers, Messrs. Earl Evers and Myrin Bass, came the bride-maids, Misses Elizabeth Schiwetz, Mildred Gabel, and Avis Crozier accompanied down the oposite aisle by the groomsmen, Messrs. Ed Gossett of Austin, Herbert Childress of San Antonio and Joyce Cox of Cameron. Then came the matrons of honor, Mrs. C. C. Morgan of West Virginia and Mrs. Geneva Cole. They were followed by the dainty little flower girl, Doris Morgan who scattered sweet peas in the pathway of the bride as she entered with her father by whom she was given in marriage. He was met at the chancel by the groom with his best man, his brother, C. O. Robinson. The bride wore her going away costume, a handsome frock of two-toned bois de rose crepe Elizabeth with a bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses from which fell a shower of lilies of the valley. The brides attendants presented a colorful picture as they grouped about the chancel. They were attired in lovely afternoon dresses of georgette in the different rainbow shades with large picture hats of harmonize. Each carried an arm sheaf of pink and lavender sweet peas, tied with rainbow tulle. Following the service at the church a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents were congratulations were offered and the many handsome wedding gifts were viewed. The bride's cake was arranged on a lace spread table, daintily adorned with pink sweet peas and maiden hair fern. Pink tapers in silver holders surrounded the cake. A lovely ring shaped confection over which was suspended the tiny wedding bell. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson departed immediately on their wedding trip, the bride wearing a beautiful squirrel trimmed coat in bois de rose to match her gown. After a visit in Galveston, New Orleans and St. Louis they will be at home in Chicago.

THE "FLY-BY-NIGHTS"

Every once in a while there comes to our own town a man or group of men who strive to sell their wares to the housewives or even to the business men.

These fellows tell in glowing terms of the quality of their goods and talk "low price." In rare cases the goods they offer are of very good quality and it is even possible that the price is low; but this is the exception and not the rule.

They do not intend to stay in a town but a few days or a few weeks. What is it to them if their goods do not come up to the marks they have said it would? They are gone and will probably never come back.

With the home merchant it is different. When he says something about his goods, you can bank on it that he is telling the truth. Regardless of the right and wrong of the matter, it is the best policy to treat his customers squarely. He intends to be with them a long time.

Support the man who helps pay your taxes. You will find that he will be sticking by you when the "fly-by-night" has been gone a long time.

TO ADVERTISE TEXAS

On June 16, there will be a special train leaving Dallas, bound for Philadelphia. On this train will be the advertising chiefs of Texas on their way to attend the meeting of the Associated Ad Clubs of the World. About 150 are expected to be present from this state.

Plans have been made for this group of men to advertise Texas to the rest of the world. They will talk Texas, act Texas, and do everything in their power to aid in letting the nation know the real value of Texas.

All of this will be in connection with the campaign for advertising Texas nationally, in which a half million dollars will be spent. The campaign as outlined will last five years. Advertising men know the value of publicity and to have such men behind the state campaign is to insure its success.

A TRADE STIMULATOR

Probably the most effective trade stimulator in these times, next to advertising, is to provide a city or town with good streets and roads leading into the surrounding districts.

The merchants of a city may shout their heads off for their home town, they may plan elaborate schemes for bringing in new trade, but if the streets are bad from the surrounding country into their town, then the trade will not come in anything like the volume they ought to have.

People hate to drive their automobiles over bad streets, and they will go 20 miles over a good road rather than 10 over a poor one. They feel that rough streets wear out their cars and tires, and every moment of jolting over the rough surfaces is an annoyance and irritation.

Business men often complain of their heavy taxes in which highway construction is one of the largest items, but they should reflect that the future of their business depends to a large extent on the character of the streets in their town and those leading to it.

Many cities are well provided with roads outside their own limits through county and state appropriations, but they are extremely neglectful of their streets, and they seem to think that people will not mind jolting over a few miles of rough surfaces before they reach their business center. This is a policy that is a great detriment to trade, and it gives a city a kind of down-at-the-heels appearance.

Much has been done in recent years to improve the streets of Cameron, but the strain of modern traffic is fierce, and much new construction and considerable rebuilding of streets needs to be done each year to add to the comfort of visiting motorists and give the city the finished appearance that a modern town must have.

AMERICAN FOREST WEEK

The week April 18 to 24 has been designated by presidential proclamation as American Forest week. This subject is vastly important to the average citizen, because his expenses have been greatly increased by the waste of our timber resources. People would not have to be paying such high rent for houses to-day, if our wooden building material had not been made scarce and high by forest waste.

The Clarke-McNary forest law, passed by congress in 1924, created a national forestry policy which eventually will do a great deal for the timber supply. But it will take many years for the full results of this new policy to make themselves felt, although forest fire prevention has been promoted by this act.

The protection of our forests depends not merely upon the government, but it needs cooperation from the average citizen. Even if the government does all it can to protect the forests, yet if the average run of people are very careless as respects forest fires, then the remnants of our woodlands are going to be wasted.

The general use of automobiles has proved a frequent cause of these destructive fires in many ways. Someone may throw away a cigaret end from an automobile into the dry grass by the side of the road, and in a few moments a fire has started and spread into the neighboring forests. If the season is dry, it does not take long for that fire to become a sweeping conflagration which in a few hours will destroy the tree growth of a half a century.

The people of Cameron who go on camping, fishing and automobile trips, must lear nto take as muc hcare to prevent forest fire, as they would to guard against fire on their own property.

PRACTISING HOME TRADE

There are a good many people who advocate theoretically the idea of trading at home, but make it their habit to go elsewhere to a large extent to do their own purchasing. According to the talk of newspaper people from various cities, many of the local merchants of those places, who advocate the idea that people should stand by their own home stores, will frequently themselves go to a larger place to do their own trading. There may be some of that kind even in such a loyal home place as Cameron.

This movement for home trading is not a selfish effort to deny people advantages they desire, but it is a thrifty idea along the line of self reliance, to the effect that a community, in order to make commercial progress, must use its own products so far as it can. In so far as it goes elsewhere for the services which are being offered at home, it is striking at its own development.

The example of the merchants in this respect feel it necessary to go or send to bigger cities is rather contagious. If they and their families in order to obtain the things they want, they say by their actions that they do not have full which is being rendered by the retail establishments of their home community. If they do not confidence in the desirability of the service make it a subject of principle to trade at home whenever it is possible to do so, it is not likely that the people generally will feel inclined to follow that policy.

In a city like Cameron we ought to be so loyal to our common enterprises, that we shall want to use our purchasing ability to assist their growth, and dislike to see any of our resources disappear by trading elsewhere.

ACTIVE CITIZENSHIP

There is too much feeling in our modern towns that the work of civilization is all done, and all we have to do is to enjoy what has been given to us and have a good time. Most people have a comfortable feeling that if there is public work to be done, someone else will attend to it.

The maintenance of a fine community is a kind of continuous operation. It takes constant vigilance to preserve the things we have, to keep from going backward. And if a town simply stands still and imagines it is keeping up, it is really going backward. For all the while competing cities are taking on new ideas, so the stationary town has fallen behind.

KEEPING UP TO DATE

Here are some of the things the average citizen needs to do to keep his town up to date:—

1.—Watch the development of education, and support new ideas that succeed elsewhere and are needed in Cameron.

2.—Take an interest in municipal affairs, be prepared to discuss them with your neighbors in a way to contribute to the general understanding of them.

3.—Vote at all primaries and elections, and know enough about candidates and policies so you will vote for the right people.

4.—Keep your home place looking just a little better than your neighbors, so it shall set an example of beauty and charm. Many more things might be mentioned, but if all would attend to these four, we would see a lot of progress.

MODERN "DEVELOPMENT"

Modern real estate booms have developed some new ideas. One is that when land is cut up for residence purposes, it will bring better prices if it is developed in an attractive way. Many developers now plant trees and shrubs just as soon as their streets and lots are staked out. Probably they are repaid many times over for this effort to start their project on an attractive basis.

Real estate owners on old and new streets in Cameron can in many cases improve the value of their property, by remedying some lacks left over from the original development.

Some neighborhoods are not attractive because there are not enough trees on either the street or on private grounds. It is never too late to set out trees, and if planted this spring, within a few years they will give a neighborhood a new touch of distinction and beauty.

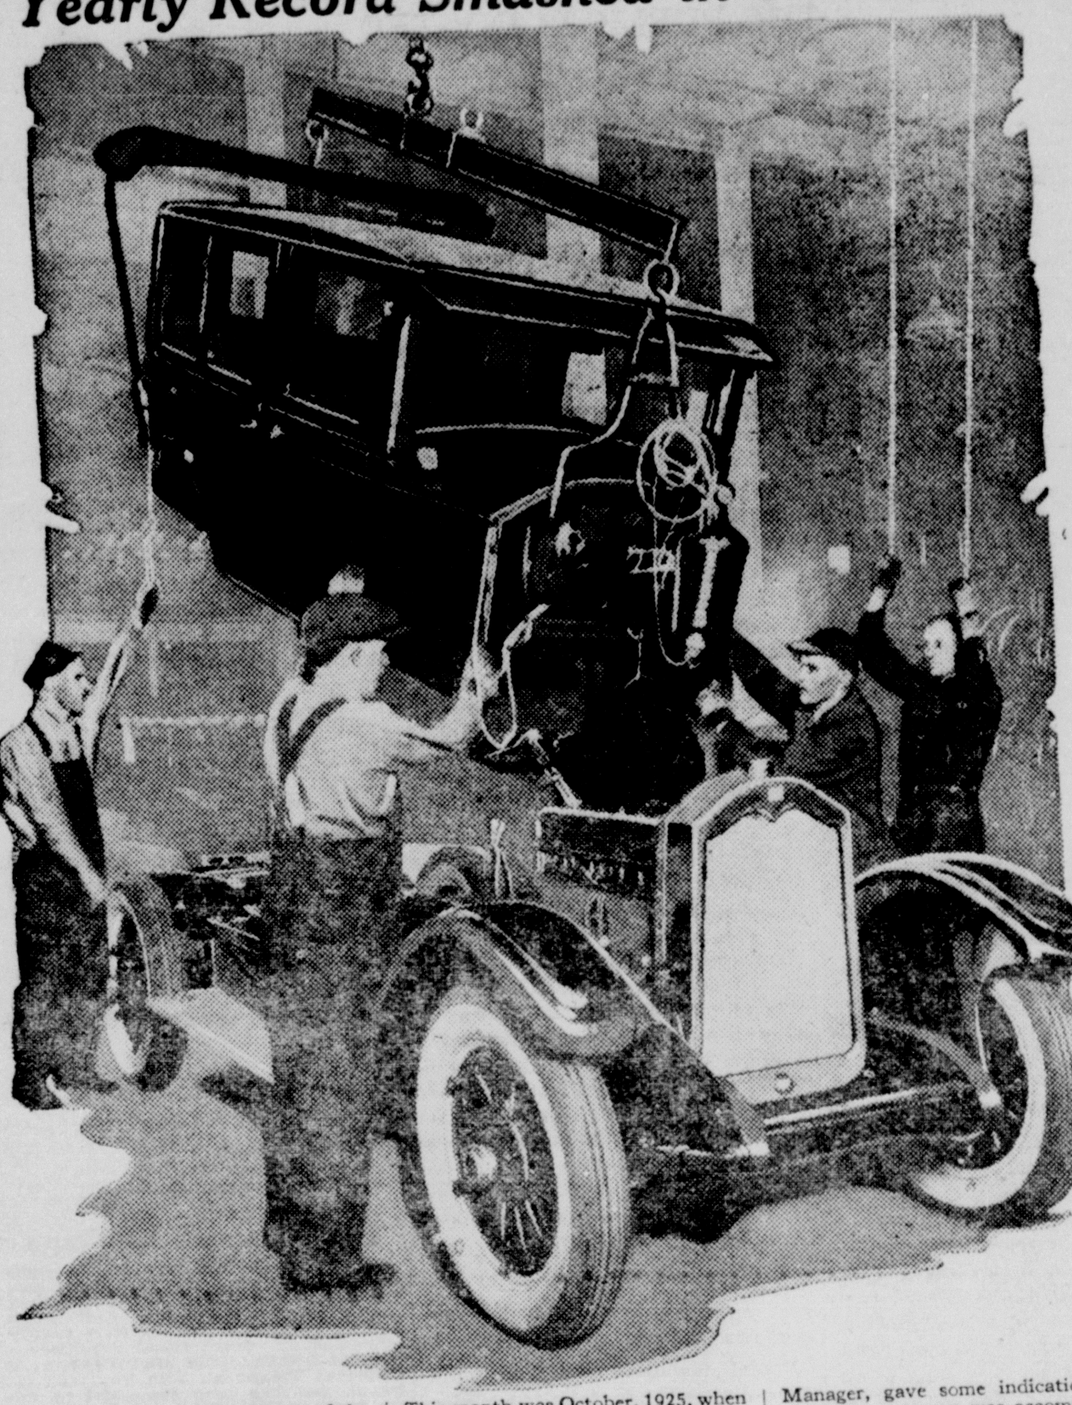
Yearly Record Smashed in 8 Months



This is the 181,324th Buick of the current series. It marked the setting of a record in shipments for Buick cars in eight months, which exceeds that of any entire fiscal year in the history of the company.

During the eight month period since Aug. 1, 1925, practically every other Buick record was smashed. The average monthly shipments was 22,865 cars, which surpasses the record of the highest previous single month. This month was October, 1925, when 22,850 cars were loaded and sent out.

The October record was also broken in each of the three months of 1926. In January the shipments set a new record of 23,265 cars which is 415 cars better than the October mark. In February the record of January was beaten by 29 cars. The March record smashed the February mark by 2,011 cars.

E. T. Strong, Buick General Sales Manager, gave some indication of what the company was accomplishing in an interview a few weeks ago. He stated that Buick dealers throughout the country had been unable to stock cars in anticipation of the Spring demand for the first time he could remember. These Buick records bear out Strong's statement that 1926 would be an exceptional year both for the auto industry and for every other branch of business.

Farm Judging At A. & M. April 19 To Attract Boys

College Station, Texas, April 12. Boys from every corner of the Lone Star State will come to the A. & M. College of Texas for the Ninth Annual Judging Contests in agricultural subjects which will be held on April 19. Some will come by train, some by auto; those living within easy driving distance will come for the day only; others live so far away that they must start four days before the contest in order to arrive on time. Two teams have been entered from the El Paso district; one from the Del Rio district; one from Dublin and one from the Silverton district. This gives an idea of the wide distribution of homes that will be represented in these agricultural contests designed for the purpose of interesting the high school student in a more efficient and scientific form of agriculture. Officials of the College expect about 700 boys to be in attendance this year, with about 450 actual contestants, if the weather is favorable for traveling. Vocational agriculture instructors over the state are encouraged to bring teams from their schools to enter the contests, believing that the contact with the College will prove an interesting and helpful experience for the boys.

A wide interest is being taken in these contests outside the circle of agricultural teachers, College officials and students. This fact is strikingly demonstrated by the fact that more trophies are being received daily for award in the contests, coming from the businesses that are founded on agriculture. Already trophies have been sent out by the International Harvester Company; American Jersey Cattle Club; Holstein-Friesan Club and the John Deere Implement Company. Representatives from the prinicpal daily newspapers of the state will be on hand to cover the contests, and many other visitors will attend to observe the boys work.

All the visitors will be the guests of the College for the day. Preparations are already being made to care for all who may attend. After the contest the boys will be honor guests at a banquet at which time the awards will be made.

Many New Chevrolet Dealers Are Added

During the last seven months the Chevrolet Motor Company added 1,619 direct and associate dealers to its selling force, making a total of almost 7,500 dealers in all parts of the country, an increase of more than 27 per cent.

The continued and steady growth of industrial development in the south and the expansion of its good roads system is reflected by the greater increase in dealer representation in southern territories.

Almost the total selling force of the average motor car company is represented alone in the number of new dealers added to the Chevrolet organization. Demand for sale franchises demonstrates the decided favor accorded the new improved Chevrolet by the buying public throughout the country.

Smaller communities, with the augmented sales force afforded by the additional associate dealers, will be assured of adequate service class at hand, while the direct dealers, generally located at county seats, will be assured of a more thorough coverage of their outlying territory.

Typical of the increased buying power of the south are reports on new dealers from four of the larger representative branch offices. Atlanta, Ga., zone headquarters, reported 107 new dealers handling Chevrolet cars; Memphis, Tenn., 100 new dealers; Charlotte, N. C., 68 and New Orleans, 52 new dealers.

Minneapolis and Des Moines showed the largest number of new dealers acquired in the northern areas.
